THE DEATH OF THE WICKED. There is a measure of good taste to be sserved and practiced even under the rocess of giving up the ghost. In a party that certainly is to be expected, but the lemocracy in this, as in everything in life, is greatly violating the rules of propriety, the decencies of dissolution in its taking off, through the noise and confusion it creates in its last struggle with the fell destroyer. THE warehouses of San Francisco are choked with grain. There is not one quarter the requisite bumber of vessels in its harbor to carry to Europe its commons crops. Freights have advanced from $11.45, the price last year, to $17.50 this year. At the same time wheat has declined thirty-five cents $15.50 this year. At the same time wheat has declined thirty-five cents. the same time wheat has declined thirty-five cents per bushel. There has not been a year in the last tyrants and priests of the product engen-dered by the dark ages, and the alliance is were so unsatisfactory as at present. The result is that there is an indisposition to sell wheat among all those who can afford to hold it. The price is so low that there seems little chance of reduction, and the freight rate is so high that it should not rise much, unless wheat rises, for it is hardly possible to see how wheat at present prices can stand any higher transportation rates. Some of the city statisticans place the capacity of the ships now known to be on the way to San Francisco at about 200,000 tons as available for wheat, but this is quite inadequate to carry the amount of wheat for sale this year if the price warrants it.
